When briefcases punctuate the webwork of sidewalks and telegraph by their complacency, "We feel safe," you are experiencing Goshen. These, our personified satchels, everywhere dot the campus, reflecting each its special owner. Indeed, to attempt to abstract the satchel from the student, the student from the campus, and the campus from Goshen College is an absurdity, for of these Goshen College is found in none and yet in all. And of such details—the student owner, the waiting caddie, the crisscrossings of concrete—are made the very who's and what's that characterize this distinct climate. So with such idiosyncrasies and others similar, the Maple Leaf, 1963, now aspires to momentarily individualize the unique ever-kaleidoscoping self-hood of Goshen College.

Goshen College is a climactically concatenary conglomeration of simultaneously interosculating strangenesses, to wit: lonely young beards on lonely young men; Conrad Grebel lectures in February; caterpillar-creeping registration lines; alarm clocks, alarm clocks; et cetera and more; briefcases.

The last is an excellent case in point. The winter snow-covered nine o'clock briefcase is perhaps the best symbol of the mutual trusts and obligations inhabiting the student body. For the scholar is never afraid to leave his tomes on the open campus as he briskly crunches to chapel in storm or sun, secure in the knowledge his books will remain untouched forever until he returns to dig them out of the drifts and hoist them away.

Fall puts a sunnier, less snowbound look on our campus: squirrels, squirrels, squirrels, black squirrels, busily bustle about in mountains of hallow-een-hued leaves, scurrying for other squirrels and walnuts, while students loll in timeless Indian Summer—everywhere oblivious to the Great Winter Cram ahead. These are lovely days for the squirrels and the students too: vacation lingers in the heart and even then couples begin coalescing out of the amorphous neuter student body as the unattached watch and wait for spring when young student fancies. . .

Of course, Goshen exists for education: intellectual and spiritual.

Classes and the cafeteria line are the daily round of the scholar. In class our student is hopefully confronted with the great minds of the past and present in subjects running the whole gamut from agriculture to astronomy. Here he learns to sift evidence, marshal his ideas, and discover for himself the true bases for understanding. He devises new ways of avoiding the immense puddles that block progress to the dining room. And then finally there, he enjoys the leisurely lunch period in integration and digestion of startling new philosophical and culinary insights.

But a spiritual dimension exists for Goshen also. The Student Pastor, morning chapel, and Sunday services are constant guides for the growth of spiritual renewal and personal commitment. The fellowship of the prayer group is an ever-present challenge for our student to re-evaluate his life and channel it in meaningful Christian outreach. In addition to these campus-wide spiritual aids, the truly concerned person is often able to think for himself.

Symbolizing Goshen could be: the midnight typewriter; the two o'clock dorm light; coffee, black; feverish scholarship minutes before tests; and long hours searching for a particular item in labyrinthine library stacks.

But study isn't all our life, for lo: serenading dormitories of the opposite sex on romantic evenings; Christmas vacations; throbbing in sympathy with the New York Central cannonball; basketball games, Give Me A G . . .

Girls wearing slacks to ice skate; the dam: diurnal and nocturnal, autumnal and vernal; pseudo-beatniks; hard-shell reactionaries; well-buttoned Canadian and seminary collars; Scholosser's.

Yes, Scholosser's, noble Scholosser's. And Miller's too: town, country, and carry out. For after having attended an L-M and noting whom everyone was with, what else to do but evacuate to the above or similar hideaways.

But extracurricular activities embrace much more than just these. There is the Record, clarion herald of campus truth, there are the deathless poses and proses of the Maple Leaf, and of course, there is foolscap—certainly the most climactically concatenary convolution of them all.

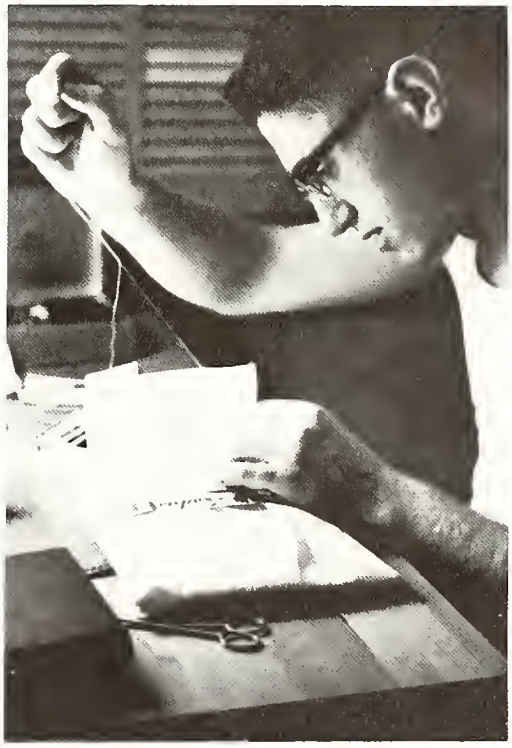
And also, much in our little whirligig day-to-day world involves the search for aesthetic truths, the kind that cannot be ephemerised or handbooked.

Music for voice and instrument from Josquin des Pres to jazz, art of China and of contemporary creation, literature from Phoenicia and from foolscap,—all stream together to montage an ever-changing network of fresh relationships, merging, shifting.

For amid all these important little trivialities and occasionally trivial big things, we find our standards for judgment and life. For us, all the spider-webbing sidewalks and Brussels sprouts and maple leaves and voice recitals somehow seem to jell for a moment, all the test tubes and microscopes, cycloids, ceramics, coverings, all the dissections and indefinite integrals suddenly melt and flow into a unity that has significance.

And now we present them for you here as they crystallize for a moment in the Maple Leaf. Look, look, but look well, because in a minute or a month the kaleidoscope will turn, the pattern will shift, and shift again, and shift again. . . .

Allen Hershberger



To the Goshen College student, a liberal arts education means courses—courses in English, literature, and fine arts—courses in the social and natural sciences.

But, a liberal arts education is more than specific courses. It means looking around as well as ahead. Thus, it is a state of mind: it is a seeking, a groping for answers beyond the classroom. It is applying learned principles to the grind of daily demands.

Liberal arts education is being, learning, growing, thinking, asking, listening, doubting, reaffirming: it is existence. For the Goshen College student, this means hard work, homework, slow work, no work.

The liberal arts education is the beginning of a lifetime of reflection, learning, studying, and giving. As such, it inculcates the habits of minds, the breadth of interest, and the enlargement of spirit which results in enriched experiences.

This is liberal arts.

Expansion highlighted the Fine Arts Department and its program. Bettie Norman was joined to the music education faculty, and a course in church music was introduced into the curriculum.

Students of fine arts displayed their talents in the photography, painting, and craft displays seen throughout the year in the Union Lounge, in Kulp Hall basement, and in the display cases in the Fine Arts Building. Likewise, senior music students presented their recitals—a signpost of achievement.

Art majors increased their skill in sculpture, oil painting, chalk and charcoal drawing, or learned techniques of print making and weaving. Music majors specialized in brass and woodwind classes, chorus, orchestra, voice, piano, and organ.

Topping this year's special events were Ezra Hershberger's exhibit of paintings, Dwight Weldy's voice recital, and the spring Orchestra-Concerto-Aria concert.

Questions after Fine Arts class about exposition, development, and recapitulation are given individual consideration by Dr. Oyer.

Warming up for orchestra practice always includes rubbing a bit of rosin on the bows.

"Steady your horn with that left hand," Professor Brinklow demonstrates to Jacob Rittenhouse in Brass Methods class.

Penciling in technique reminders, Addie Amstutz works to perfect a difficult passage in Bach.

In an effort to teach communications more effectively, freshman communication classes were reorganized this year. Likewise always changing, one of the general literature sections experimented with Asian literature.

To the already existing curriculum, a course in intermediate Russian was added, while Language and Thought, a new course in general sematics, was offered Tuesday evenings.

Technique was stressed in speech, discussion, debate, and persuasion classes. Dramatically inclined students enrolled in Oral Interpretation and Studies in Drama. Special events of the Speech Department included the Third Annual Maple Leaf Debate Tournament, short plays, and programs for special interest groups. Other forensic activities included speech contests, a poetry-reading contest, and speech recitals given by senior speech majors.

The department gained two faculty members this year: Naomi Brenneman, a visiting professor from Bluffton College, and Vernon Schertz.

The speech rule, gesture for emphasis, is not forgotten by Milo Yoder as he practices delivery in Speech class.

The adjustments of the retired person in the play, Five in the Living Room, is portrayed by Harold Troyer and Mark Brubacher in Oral Interpretation class.

Placing the final umlaut over the a, Doris Enns and Becky Roth complete a drill in elementary German class.

Before the crucial words, "end of tape," are heard, much is learned by students of Russian, French, German, and Spanish in Language lab.

Because the human sciences cover a broad area of man's relationships with his fellow men, every student is required to take foundation studies in history and sociology, more specifically in Western Civilization and Family and Community.

Sociology majors and future social workers specialized in how to deal with problems encountered in rural and urban communities. Economics majors considered the problems of banking, corporations, and marketing. Relevant courses in recent American and European history, church history, and intellectual and cultural history were offered to history students.

These history courses were supplemented by current affairs lectures and forums conducted by the faculty of the social science division.

Professor J. Howard Kauffman returned from a year's leave spent in Germany studying German family life. Richard Camp joined the history staff, as did J. C. Meyer, who replaced Professor Willard Smith for the second semester. Professor Smith is continuing his study of William Jennings Bryan.

"And a grade of A to anyone getting married this semester," promises Dr. Hershberger in Family and Community class.

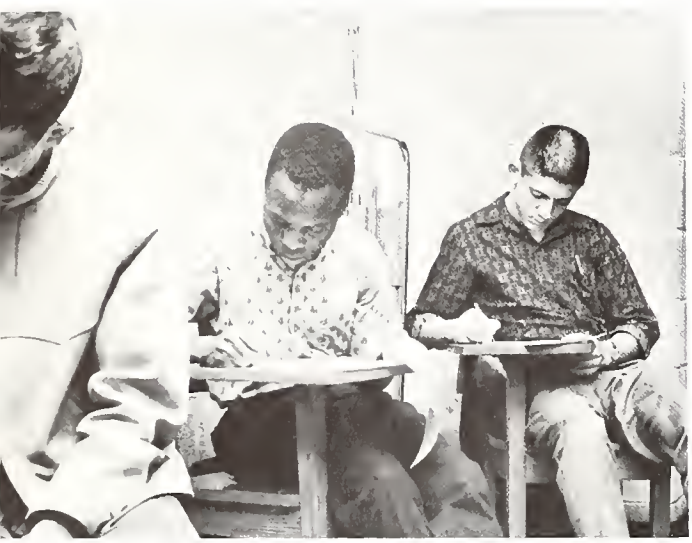
The birth of the scientific spirit and subsequent movements is one aspect covered by Dr. Oyer in Intellectual and Cultural History of the Western World class.

John Yordy analyzes historical trends as he scans the S.F.C. Current Affairs Bulletin Board in the Alumni Memorial Dining Room.

Challenged—that was the word for students in both pure science—mathematics, physics, biology, and chemistry—and the applied sciences—home economics and physical education.

Returning from his leave, Paul Bender found three new faculty members in Division III—Winifred Beechy, William Freed, and Jonathan Roth. Change occurred also in the curriculum. The Math Department underwent revision and restructuring, and Organic Qualitative Analysis was added to the chemistry courses. The Physical Education Department implemented a new fundamental physical fitness program for freshmen.

Detailed plans for the remodeling of Science Hall, to begin the summer of 1963, were worked out. With the aid of an Eli Lilly grant of $93,000, Science Hall will soon gain a new look. In addition to the Eli Lilly grant, a $2,950 grant from the National Science Foundation was awarded to this division for encouragement of research by faculty members.



To many students' surprise, Physical Education class includes skill tests and stiff exams.

Seeking the advice of Professor Beechy, Janet Miller correctly places her Vogue coat pattern on the wool in Advanced Problems in Clothing class.

Plastic models aid students to visualize the concepts of Embryology class taught by Dr. Amstutz.

Counted and measured drops contribute to the scientific accuracy of science major Eunice Steiner.

As service, teacher education has been one of the major functions of Goshen College. Between 50 and 60 per cent of all four-year graduates are prepared to teach.

New sequences for education students were launched this year. Covering five years of study, the new program leads to a Master of Arts degree, meeting the new requirements of the Indiana State Board of Education. New freshmen began 3 hours of general education courses. Later they will add strong majors and minors and at least eight hours of graduate level work in each of their teaching fields.

All future teachers gain professional experience through their sophomore and junior field experiences, practice teaching, and assisting in the college laboratory kindergarten. Under the supervision of Kathryn Aschliman, the new kindergarten teacher, many future elementary education teachers assisted in teaching the children enrolled in the kindergarten or observed characteristic behavior during lab sessions.

"Rub it around," assistant Judy Yoder directs the children in the college laboratory kindergarten.

Dr. Wyse supervises Arlene Yoder's techniques of teaching aids in Teaching Home Economics class.

Since all birds must have feathers, Mrs. Hoover arranges hat plumes on her papier-maché creation in Elementary School Art class.

Aiding the improvement of the School of Nursing, a National Institute of Mental Health five-year grant of $69,000 was received. The purpose of this grant is to initiate a study of ways of integrating mental health concepts throughout the nursing curriculum.

There were many additions to the nursing faculty. Anne Krabill, Anna Zimmerman, and Ruth Yoder joined the staff. Norma Jean Weldy returned to teach following a leave spent at the University of Colorado.

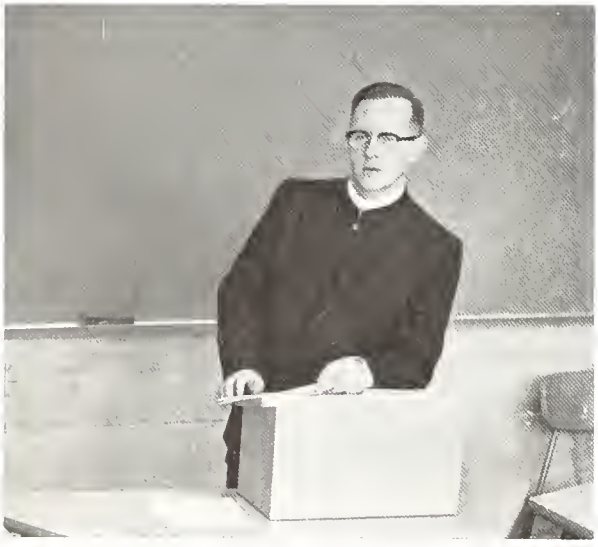
In addition, a general nursing major, a graduate program for registered nurses who have taken part in hospital training, was added.

Freshman nurses are enrolled in liberal arts. As sophomores, they spend one day a week working at the Elkhart General Hospital. During their junior year, they spend a great part of their time working at the hospital in pediatrics, obstetrics, and medical-surgical nursing. Senior nurses gain experience in public health and nursing management, supplementing this program with upper-level electives.

As a panel, Jerry Gross and Charles Montoya present their research on a personality theory to the Psychology of Personality class.

The putting on of surgical gloves needs special explanation and practice by Professor Yoder in Nursing I class.

Social adjustments experienced by kindergarteners are observed and reported on by Developmental Psychology students.



Deeper understanding of the Bible and church was reached when students met the four years of required Bible and philosophy. Adding color to book study, history, and surveys were courses in philosophy, ethics, devotional life, and Mennonite principles. Joining the college Bible faculty was Instructor Lawrence Klippenstein.

Change characterized the Goshen College Biblical Seminary. The enrollment had an unprecedented increase to 59 full-time and 21 part-time students, making a total of 80 students as compared to the 41 of last year.

President Paul Mininger served as Acting Dean upon the death of Dean Harold S. Bender. Ross T. Bender joined the seminary faculty and served as Assistant to the Dean.

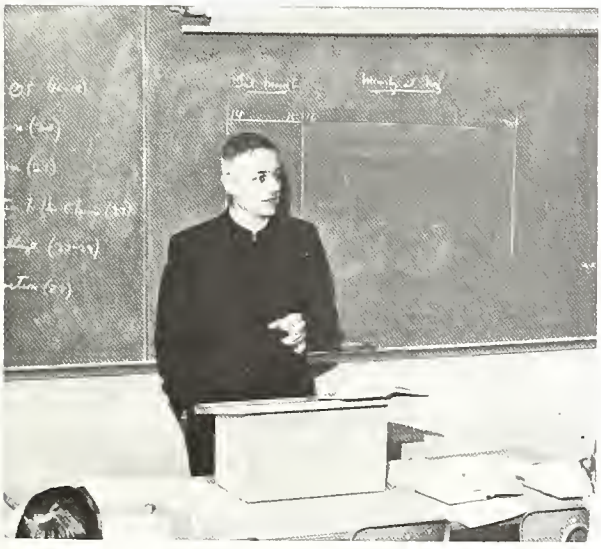
Offered for the first time was the course, A Seminar in Clinical Problems. Taught by Dr. Otto Klassen from the Oaklawn Psychiatric Center in Elkhart, Indiana, this course was open only to certain seminary graduates who were presently local pastors.

Discussion is led by Professor Jeschke in the small seminary class, Philosophy of Religion.

Dr. Bender, Assistant to the Dean of the Seminary, includes teaching in his daily schedule.

Hurrying to present all the required material, Dr. Wenger begins the book study of John in New Testament class.

Diagrams and graphs on the board emphasize Dr. Charles's vivid lectures to seminary students.



The Goshen College student supplements his formal education through his participation in the wide range of campus climate.

The more ambitious students rise early to be on time for chorus, or spend long hours in the periodical room looking up debate material. Others learn to fly airplanes, write poetry, or participate in one of the many student organizations. Budding journalists put in time in the Maple Leaf and Record offices. More vocal counterparts operate WGCS.

Within the organization of the YPCA, every student finds an opportunity to share his spiritual life and to grow by serving others.

An extensive intramural program, as well as impromptu games of all kinds, provide welcome recreation. The extramural sports program brings opportunities for interaction with other colleges.

Organizations are vital to the Goshen campus. Participation in them is a means of relaxation but also a cultivation of the dimension of creativity.

An implicit part of our college life is the growth of our spiritual understanding and life. As Christian students we are both participating in and preparing for a life of service in response to Christ's call. Through the YPCA, students seek together to enrich their spiritual lives and to grow in the knowledge of Christ. Preparation for future service is made through serving while in school.

The Y provides programs, small-group fellowships, and other aids in an attempt to help students grow in their faith. The Y also provides opportunities for students to go beyond the campus, witnessing to their faith through action.

"Let's go," insisted Lawrence Garber impatiently as he waited for the other Gospel Team members.

"Put the round block through the window like this," Corinne Rohrer guided the co-ordination of two children in the program of the Rehabilitation Center in Elkhart.

Taking time out for institutional visitation to the aged, Dwight King became a sympathetic listener.

Old-time favorites sung by a quartet of young voices during home visitation cheered the discouraged and the confined.

Bradley Yoder patiently tutored the schoolwork of a boy at Bashor's Children's Home while the boy's pet took a nap.

The Y Cabinet, composed of the commissioners, the sponsor, seminary representative, and Executive Committee was responsible for the effective administration of the Y program. The Cabinet met weekly to discuss various campus concerns and how they related to the Y. Much discussion resulted from the possibility of a new student government setup and the relationship the YPCA would have to this group. The Cabinet also worked on restructuring the present Y program to enable it to more effectively meet campus needs. Several high lights of the year were the Inter-Y-Conference at EMC, meetings with the faculty Religious Life Committee, and weekends of sharing and fellowship at Brunk's Cabin.

Brushing up on the Inter-Y-Conference proceedings, Ada Mast relaxed on the Eastern Mennonite College campus.

YPCA Cabinet. Clockwise: Gerald Gross, Ada Mast, Victoria Bryan, Calvin King, Janice Eicher, David Rhodes, Pastor Bauman, Orrie Clemens, Roseyn Rychener, Janet Miller, Phyllis Bontrager, John C. Yoder, Willis Rudy.

Missions Commission. Clockwise: Emerson Blosser, Merlin Grieser, Carolyn Detwiler, Orrie Clemens, Marilyn Troyer, Douglas Snyder, Ruth Gogel, Mary Chupp, Ross Rhodes, Carol Grieser.

Y-sponsored hymn sings were a time for the student body to gather in Assembly Hall with a joyful noise.

The Faith Commission, led by Janet Miller and David Rhodes, concentrated their work on helping students find a more relevant spiritual life. Y chapel, prayer groups, and Sunday school were used as means to this end. The Fellowship Commission, guided by Phyllis Bontrager and Gerald Gross, provided small-group activities, such as midwinter social, all campus activities, and small-group retreats at Brunk's Cabin.

The Evangelism Commission provided outreach opportunities in visitation, rescue mission programs, and Gospel teams. This commission was directed by Roseyn Rychener and Willis Rudy. The Service Commission gave students many avenues through which to work. Ronald Massanari and Sara Lou Gingerich were in charge.

Carolyn Detwiler and Orrie Clemens, in charge of the Missions Commission, worked at making the concept of missions a more relevant and meaningful part of our campus.

The Y publicity was taken care of by the Publicity Commission under Janice Eicher and Jefferson Hartzler.

Numerous luncheon meetings of the Y Chapel Committee, Kirk Allman, Dawn Miller, Helen Steury, and Robert Brunk, went into the planning of a Quakers' meeting, an old-time hymn sing, William Blake's poetry, and other memorable programs.

A cup of tea in a faculty home enhanced the discussion of contemporary topics in the informal "fireside fellowships."

Dotting the campus were some 90 prayer cells and small groups which met weekly for conversation, Bible study, and prayer.

A joke told by BIG COLLEGE BROTHER usually captured the attention of this group of Lighthouse boys.

Student government was the main thrust of the STUDENT ACTIVITIES BOARD this year. This group, which exists primarily to determine and promote the establishment of general policies related to student activities, saw student government as a solution to the problem of gaps and overlaps in present campus organizations.

The STUDENT-FACULTY COUNCIL is composed of student and faculty members elected to discuss topics relevant to campus life. The council met every three weeks and discussed the annual work drive, health center services, and student membership on faculty standing committees.

MEN'S LEAGUE unified relations between the resident men, represented the men's thinking to the college administration, and promoted Christian attitudes and fellowship on campus.

Among the new activities explored by the WOMEN'S HOUSE GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION this year were helping with freshmen orientation discussion groups and assisting in training freshmen counselors.

SAB. Clockwise: Edith Herr, Kermit Yoder, Melvin Stjernholm, Robert Brunk, William Meyers, Dean Atlee Beechy.

WHGA Inter-Dorm Council. Seated: Carolyn Bauman, Jeanette Rhodes, Phyllis King, Arlene Yoder. Standing: Ruth Geiser, Winifred Hostetler, Shirley Stauffer, Bernadine Albrecht.

Formerly a chorus, now a choir, the A CAPPELLA CHOIR gave several outstanding performances this year under the directorship of Dr. Weldy. The focal points of the year were the tour during Easter vacation, the Homecoming program in which Bach's "Come, Jesu, Come" was presented, and the performance in February of compositions by Pachelbel, Schelle, and others. At commencement the choir joined other choral organizations to perform a work of larger proportions.

COLLEGIATE CHORUS, directed by Marvin Miller, shares a similar organization and rehearsal schedule to the A Cappella Chorus. In contrast to it, membership is composed primarily of freshmen. The year's activities included programs on campus, in local churches, and weekend tours to surrounding states.

A Cappella Chorus. First. Mary Yoder, Margaret Day, Leona Saxton, Carol Grieser Byrdalene Wyse, Rebecca Miller, Virginia Mast, Joan Krabill, Barbara Gerber, Leanna Martin, Grace Martin, Ruth Geiser, Carolyn Amstutz. Second: Nova Jean Wingard, Judith Baer, Althea Engle, Carol Miller, Arlene Reinford, Janice Carpenter, Joyce Miller, Marilyn Troyer, Rebecca Roth, Elaine Merillat, Ella Metzler, Carol Musselman, Arlene Harder, Winifred Hostetler. Third: John Hostetter, Philip Mullet, Oren Horst, Helmuth Neudorf, Dwight King, Melvin Stjernholm, Daniel Schrock, Arthur Smoker, Gerald Gross, Thomas Hershberger, Jerad Massanari, Dale Schlabach, Lean Yoder. Fourth: Mila Yoder, James Brenneman, Gerald Hurst, Marvin Eash, Lawrence Garber, Stanley Heer, James Mininger, Bryan Noe, Alan Hochstetler, Max Miller, Ernest Smucker, John Zook, Daniel Steiner, Willis Horst.

Collegiate Chorus. First: Marjorie Teuscher, Janis Yoder, Grace Marie Souder, Kristin Troyer, Nancy Eash, Joanne Byler, Catharine Roth, Lois Beller, Barbara Aeschliman, Judith Stealy, Gretchen Honderich, Ellen Brenner, Lois Yoder, Lynette Martin. Second: Sandra Stalter, Susan Troyer, LuEtta Yoder, Katherine Ulrich, Eleanor Steiner, Lillian Knox, Brenda Short, Louise Stuckey, Sandra Richer, Janice Kauffman, Sara Roth, Karen Beechy, Evelyn Yoder, Carolyn Kilmer, Faye Mosemann. Third: Anna Marie Conrad, Michael Shantz, David Nofziger, Kenneth Hofstetter, Rodney Godshall, Jerald Hostetler, Ervin Glick, Byron Good, Devon Leu, David Yoder, Calvin King, Howard Mummau, Philip Rittenhouse, Samuel Toye. Fourth: John E. Yoder, Daniel King, Gerald Kreider, Kenyon Yoder, Knud Petersen, Richard Zimmerman, John Kaufmann, Donald Krabill, Sanford Kauffman, Otis Hochstetler, David Martin, James Miller, Gerald Short.

The repertoire of the MOTET SINGERS consisted of Brahm's "Three Motets," settings of the "Psalms" by Schutz, the Easter portion of "The Messiah," and Britten's "Ceremony of Carols." The Recorder Ensemble joined in the performance of madrigals and the "Five Shakespearean Songs" by J. Harold Moyer, which were commissioned by the Music Department. The Motet Singers, directed by Dr. Oyer, aimed to become familiar with as much of the important music literature as possible, which made practice time more important than their few excellent performances during the year.

Under the direction of Adeline Amstutz, church music from all periods was studied and performed by the NURSES' CHORUS at local churches and on two weekend tours. A chamber group assisted the performance of a Seventeenth-Century Cantata at the Christmas program.

The SEMINARY CHORUS, under the direction of Marvin Miller, was composed of all the seminary men who wished to participate. Two hours each week were freed in the seminary schedule for the group to rehearse. The group gave programs in Iowa and Illinois on weekend tours.

Dr. Mary Oyer directed the Motet Singers in their study and performance of difficult choral works.

Motet Singers: Front: Dr. Mary Oyer, Lorraine Murphy, Adeline Amstutz, Macy Freidt, Carolyn Stoltzfus, Janet Longenecker, Phyllis Bontrager, Rhoda Nyce, Martha Bender, Judith Senner, Marcia Yoder, Kay Swartzendruber, Joyce Metzler, Kathleen Winger, Betty Falb, Caralee Eicher. Back: David Rhodes, Kenneth Nafziger, Chris Yoder, J. Arden Godshall, Evan Kreider, J. Harold Hess, Jason Byler, Philip Clemens, Franklin Bontrager, Victor Vogt, John Gerber, Donald Sheeler, Sherwin Bachman, Amos Burkholder, Jacob Rittenhouse, Willis Rudy.

Seminary Chorus: Front: Marlin Zook, Harold Kreider, Milton Schwartzentruber, Earl Sears, Marion Bontrager, Wesley Richards, Director Marvin Miller, Calvin King, Paul Swarr, Donald Nafziger, John Friesen, Vernon Brubacher. Back: Charles Shenk, Ralph Buckwalter, Glenn Brubacher, LeRay Walters, James Lapp, James Burkhalder, Carl Rudy, Norman Kauffmann, James Horsch, Waldemar Eger, Kenneth Stevanus.

The COLLEGE ORCHESTRA was larger and better balanced this year than at any other time.

The orchestra provided the closing number in the annual Homecoming music program. At the Christmas concert they performed the overture, "Pinocchio," by Ernest Toch, Beethoven's "Eighth Symphony," and "Six French Dances," by Paul Hindemith.

The spring concert was centered around the winners in the annual concerto-aria contest. Phyllis Bontrager, alto soloist, sang some selections from "Sea Pictures" by Elgar. Reis Flora played "Concerto Grosso in B flat Major" for oboe by Handel. Kay Swartzendruber, soprano, sang "Un Bel Di" from the opera, "Madame Butterfly," by Puccini. Victor Vogt played the "Violin Concerto in G Major" by Mozart. In addition to accompanying the soloists, the orchestra performed "Peter and the Wolf" by Prokofiev.

Practicing twice each week, the orchestra, under the direction of Lon Sherer, integrated the individual instruments into one harmonious sound—an excellency which became the orchestra's drawing card.

Vibrato and bow control produced velvety sounds from Carolyn Amstutz's and Myrna Burkholder's violas.

Through a united effort of faculty and student staff, WGCS added approximately twenty-five "on the air" hours to the 1962-63 weekly broadcast schedule. Program additions included "Campus Note," featured Friday and Saturday evenings until midnight, and Sunday broadcasts from 8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. Freshmen were responsible for much of the extra time needed for engineering and announcing. A new program format was introduced and the mailing list greatly increased.

Professor Lon Sherer, Station Manager, selected music for "Evening Concert" and Sunday broadcasts. Other faculty members included Dr. Henry Weaver, Jr., Chief Engineer, who worked with Student Engineer Coordinator E. Junior Bechtel, and Dr. Roy Umble, Program Director, who assisted Student Program Directors Bill Davidson and Charles L. Hostteter. Martha Mishler served as News Director.

Co-ordinating the content of the broadcasted programs, News Director Martha Mishler and Program Director Charles Hostetler discussed the choice of background music for a news program.

Chief Engineer E. Junior Bechtel explained broadcasting controls for emergency situations to Stanley Heer and James Erb.

The Record strived to fulfill its role as the Goshen College newspaper by reporting campus happenings to students, faculty, and interested persons throughout the world. As well as "straight news," the Record included editorials, features, and sports reports intended to stimulate, inform, and entertain.

The editors attended collegiate newspaper conferences, collecting ideas and contemporary techniques to be employed in the Record.

Much preparation went into each biweekly issue of the Record. A staff of approximately 30 students performed the necessary tasks, from gathering the news to distributing the finished papers.

Mixed with the work was play—pretzels, snowballs, informal photography displays, misplaced dictionaries, spelling contests, and 10:14 rushes to the dorm were a part of the atmosphere of the little office.

Those blank spaces which should have been filled with one more news story became the headaches of Editor Stanley Heatwole, Managing Editor Donald Kurtz, and Assistont Editor Joann Yoder.

Deciphering edited copy, typist LaVon Nolt pecked away on an ancient typewriter, which more often than not was replaced by an electric one in the commerce room.

Though appearances may indicate so, illegal procedures were not the business of Photographer Marvin Eash and Business Manager William Baer.

Collecting a variety of articles, Sports Editor Dennis Weaver, News Editor Roseyn Rychener, and Feature Editor Carolyn Dick investigated every conceivable possibility.

Distribution and proofreading kept Copy Editor Elaine Merillat and Circulation Manager Linus Miller busy at every odd hour.

Conceived in a fit of fancy, humored by romping jovality, disciplined discreetly by administration, matured by inevitable problems, aged by lingering deadlines, and executed emphatically on May 23, the 1963 Maple Leaf's life was done. Or had it just begun?

In the nebish decorated office, Ad 010, the Maple Leaf, in its painful and short but eventful existence, experienced many seemingly disconnected trivials. The Maple Leaf gave shelter when Archie was expelled from the Record office once again. It heard long discussions between the editors who never came to concrete decisions. Friends poked their faces in the door and stayed for a two-hour gab session. Staff members snacked and napped. The sole window alternately swelled shut and fell out. And sometimes, yes sometimes, the Maple Leaf found itself involved in the activity, especially around deadline time. With pushing patience, it was done at last.

An image interpretation of Goshen College received priority of time for Associate Editor John C. Yoder and Editor Rhoda Amstutz.

"Push a few patron ads," Business Manager Merritt Lehman instructed his staff members, David Smeltzer and Leslie Swartley.

Following the second draft, copyeditors Jane Hostetler and Kirk Allman discussed copy form with typist Grace Weaver (center).

Senior Editor Roseyn Rychener co-ordinated policy with Activities Editor Betty Mast. Meanwhile, Photographer Harold Helmuth focused for a candid shot.

"Everything is here but what I filed!" discovered Sports Editor Linus Miller, Faculty Editor Jon Smucker, and Underclass Editor Cara Lou Schrock.

Annually published by Goshen students is FOOLSCAP: that which diffuses to all the world the creative poetry, photography, prose, art, etc., generated by the college student body and prexy.

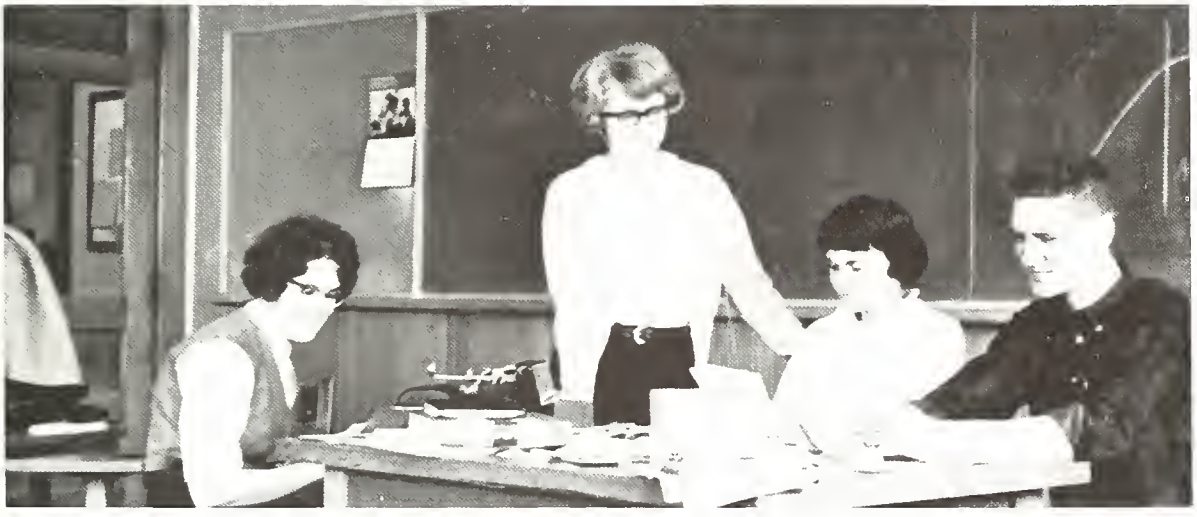
The Y COMMUNICATOR, edited by Donald Kurtz, served as the center of communication for the activities of the YPCA. This year it featured each of the Y commissions, presenting the committees within each, and the Inter-Y-Conference held at Eastern Mennonite College during the fall.

Contemporary poetry and feature articles were Y Communicator editor's main source of copy.

A sculpture carved from dried bread became the center of interest at a foolscap staff meeting when Editor Allen Hershberger displayed it to his Co-ordinating Editors Rhoda Schrag, Joanne Hallman, Myrna Burkhalder, Francis Hassencahl, Margaret Cooke, John Beachy, Kenneth Naiziger, and Philip Clemens.

Their proposed plan incubated for a moment as affirmative debators John C. Yoder and James Mininger followed the opposing squad's presentation.

Sharing quotes and statistics enriched the effectiveness of debators Francis Hassencahl, Rebecca Kreider, Treva Bantrager, and James Wenger as a squad.



DEBATE centered around international economics and politics with the question being: "Resolved That the Noncommunist Nations of the World Should Establish an Economic Community." A promising novice squad participated in the Third Annual Maple Leaf Tournament and tournaments at Butler and Purdue. The varsity squad debated in the Maple Leaf Tournament, at the Notre Dame Invitational, and in tournaments at Indiana University and Dubuque University. The team won third place in the latter contest.

CHRISTOPHER DOCK CLUB is the Goshen College chapter of the Student National Education Association. Paralleling the purposes of the national organization, this club is designed to provide opportunities for personal and professional growth, development of leadership skills, understanding of the history, ethics, and programs of education, and participation in professional activities. An introduction to the N.E.A., films, a talk on the ethics of teaching, a tea for supervising teachers, and various skits designed to give the members a better understanding of their profession were among the year's activities.

This year saw the formation of a new club from an old one. The LANGUAGE ARTS CLUB, an organization of long-standing existence, recognized and followed its members' wishes for a club which could enact plays, as well as read them. With this purpose in mind, the DRAMA CLUB revised the Language Arts Club to accommodate its new aims.

Besides sponsoring the two all-school plays, reading "The Death of the Hired Man," and viewing "Five in a Living Room," DRAMA CLUB used its own membership to produce a play in the late spring.

Kenneth Nafziger conducted a discussion period during the February Christopher Dock meeting.

Pausing in their rehearsal of The Sign of Jonah, William Meyers and Allen Hershberger received suggestions from the Language Arts Club members.

How does the Christian relate to the social and political problems of our age? What does the love ethic as taught by Jesus imply concerning the Christian's relation to his fellow men? Through various media the PEACE SOCIETY attempted to give Goshen College students and others an opportunity to face these questions and discuss them.

Observing the Sign of Jonah, the Language Arts Club members increased their own dramatic ability, as well as aided the play cast with their suggested improvements and changes.

The SEMINARY FELLOWSHIP planned weekly Friday morning programs. It also arranged socials, prayer cell groups, and sent representatives to the regional Inter-Seminary Fellowship. Several Eastern Mennonite College Seminary students were entertained here during the Associated Seminary Lectures. Particular attention was given to studying the relationship of Goshen Seminary students with the Elkhart Seminary students.

The PRE-SEMINARY FELLOWSHIP seeks to give direction and growth to the sense of the Christian calling and mission of its members. In monthly meetings the call to the ministry, the concept of the ministry, and the nature of the church are discussed. Many members of the fellowship also found expression in the Gospel teams.

College students interested in exploring seminary study, in discussing relevant theological matters, and in providing a channel for fellowship among pre-seminary students participated in the Pre-Seminary Fellowship.

Dr. Mary Oyer lectured to the Seminary Fellowship in February on "The Implications of Instrumental Music Trends in the Mennonite Church."

The MENNONITE HISTORICAL SOCIETY, now in its thirty-ninth year, was founded by the late Dean H. S. Bender, who had been its principal leader and source of inspiration. The society publishes The Mennonite Quarterly Review, a scholarly journal devoted to Anabaptist and Mennonite history and culture. It sponsors three public meetings annually.

Black coffee and cookies kept seminary students cheery during their Wednesday informal coffee hour.

STUDENT NURSES' ASSOCIATION is a nationwide student organization created for the benefit of both nursing and prenursing students. Students prepared themselves for membership in the American Nurses' Association.

The HOME ECONOMICS CLUB stimulated classroom activities with a field trip, an alumni lunch for home economic graduates, and hosting the IHEA spring meeting.

Helpful scrapbooks and files intrigued Home Economics Club members when President Bernadine Albrecht displayed some excellent examples prepared by students.

Carol Unzicker presents a report to the Student Nurses' Association. SNA. Front: Beula Clemens, Sharon Unzicker, Ada Mast, Evelyn Kauffman, Sponsor: Bernice Rupp. Second: Marilyn Graber, Patricia Gascho, Enid Miller, Julia Yoder. The SCIENCE CLUB stimulated interest in the sciences through monthly meetings, special lectures, and field trips. The meetings included a lecture by Professor Roth, the showing of the Bell Telephone film, "Unchained Goddess," and a trip to Ames laboratories in Elkhart, the research division of Miles Laboratories, Inc.

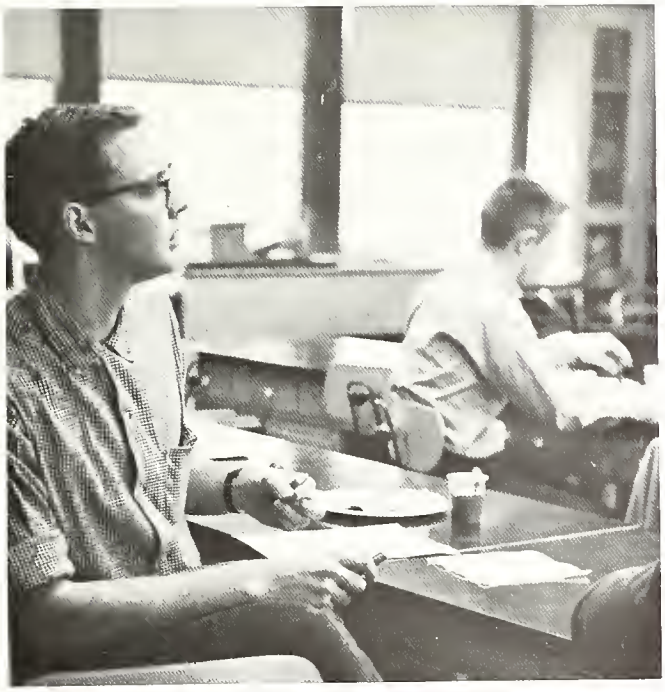
The purpose of the AUDUBON CLUB is to widen interests in all phases of nature through films, guest lectures, discussions, and filmstrips.

The spirit of inquiry permeated the Science Club's activities.

Following a Christmas vacation trip with Dr. Witmer to southern Florida, Stanley Heatwole displayed to the Audubon Club an armadillo he had captured on his tour.



The GERMAN CLUB promoted interest in and appreciation of German culture during its monthly meetings this year. Slides shown by Robert Brunk of his tour through Germany, a lecture by Dr. J. Howard Kauffman on German family life, and a poetry-reading contest were among the club's activities. Members of the club also enjoyed the annual cooky-baking party at the home of Mrs. H. S. Bender.

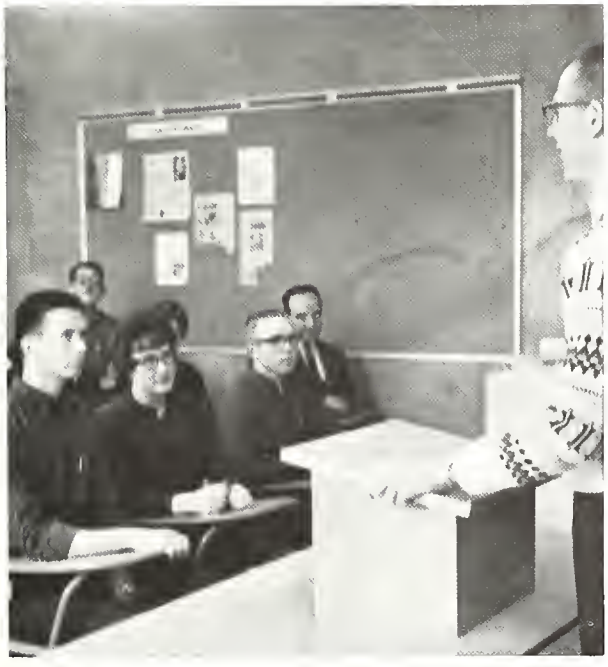
The SPANISH CLUB provided a means of informal instruction and group participation in the reading of plays, the playing of word games, and singing. Students were also able to come into closer contact with the Spanish culture through various guest speakers who have visited a Spanish-speaking country or who are citizens of such a country. The high light of the year was a trip to the Spanish section of Chicago with dinner at a well-known Spanish restaurant.

Singing German folk songs, ballads, and hymns was a pleasant pastime for the German Club.

Spanish conversation became frustrating when there were no dictionaries (except friends) to locate the right word to express thoughts.

The INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB encouraged social, intellectual, and spiritual exchange and promoted mutual understanding among students of all nationalities. Monthly meetings were held in community homes throughout the school year.

Special functions for this year were the weekend at Brunk's Cabin and the Foreign Student Conference at Bluffton College.



The SOCIAL WORK CLUB created interest in and informed individuals of the nature and the opportunities in social work. The members were personally involved in discussions among themselves and with leading social workers.

As a project, the club assumed some responsibility at the Logan School for the Mentally Retarded and presented a play, relating the complexities of the human personality.

International Relations Club. Clockwise: Frank Mkwanazi, Northern Rhodesia; Vivi Mavridou, Greece; Stephen Chen, Formosa; Joanne Liu, China; Dean Viola Good; Hisako Naito, Japan; Waldemar Eger, Germany; Geraldine Chan, Hong Kong; Albert Oei, Java; Peter Waiyaki, Kenya; Knud Petersen, Denmark; Hyon Kim, Korea; Toshiko Shinohara, Japan; Samuel Toye, Nigeria; Helmut Neudorf, Paraguay; Sung Kim, Korea; William Kiama, Kenya; Yorifumi Yaguchi, Japan; Barbel Ewert, Germany; Lotani Mukasa, Uganda.

Bradley Yoder, president of the Social Work Club, presided at the meetings to introduce the speaker of the evening or coordinate other activities.

The speech contests this year gave many students opportunity to use their speaking talents and to impart unique ideas on many subjects.

The Peace Oratorical Contest in November gave students new ideas for creative peace and realistic solutions to the world situations with Rhoda Amstutz and Dwight King walking off with top honors. Following in their footsteps, Howard Mummau won the Freshman Men's Peace Oratorical.

Freshman Men and Women's Speech Contests, won by Wallace Gingerich and Alice Eicher gave opportunity for freshmen to acquire experience in speaking. Roseyn Rychener won the Women's Speech Contest with her chosen subject of semantic blindness.

Men's Peace Oratorical. Ivan Friesen, 2nd; Dwight King, 1st; Judge Jess Yoder.

Wamen's Peace Oratorical. Rhoda Amstutz, 1st; Frances Hassencahl, 3rd; Ida Gross, 2nd.

Women's Speech. Roseyn Rychener, 1st; Carolyn Stoltzfus, 2nd.

Freshman Men's Speech. Wallace Gingerich, 1st; Howard Zehr, 2nd; John Swartz, 3rd.

Freshman Women's Speech. Alice Umble, 3rd; Alice Eicher, 1st; Catharine Roth, 2nd.

The fifteen members of the CREATIVE WRITING CLUB, under the sponsorship of professor John Fisher, met once a month in the home of members to discuss their original works for mutual criticism and comment. Several club meetings were tape-recorded for discussions of oral readings of poetry.

The AERO CLUB is an organization composed of members who have a genuine interest in flying and related activities. The members learn how to fly in the least expensive manner through the use of the club's own plane. In club meetings, breakfast flights, and special activities, the club includes a Christian orientation toward the use of flying.

Freshman Men's Peace Oratoricol. Vernon Hoover, 3rd; Howard Mummau, 1st; John E. Yoder, 3rd; Burl Troyer, 2nd.

Freezing weather or not, the Areo Club flew.

Allen Hershberger presented a short work for criticism of the Creative Writing Club.

The WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION is an honorary organization consisting of girls active in intramural sports. Membership is acquired by virtue of winning an athletic award. The girls were hosts to Taylor, Calvin, and Grace colleges for Sports Days, playing contests in both volleyball and basketball. The girls were also guests at Calvin College for contests in softball and tennis during the spring.

G COUNCIL is an honorary organization for men. Membership consists of award winners in the Intramural Athletic program. The group acts as an advisory group for the men's athletic activities. Along with the W.A.A., the G Council sponsored the all-school Halloween party and the annual Athletic Banquet.

Exuberant enthusiasm displayed by cheerleaders, Beverly Litwiller and Barbara Hertzler, led the Goshen fans in their cheering.

The Goshen College Maple Leafs completed their third winning season in a row with a 10-6 over-all record. The final game of the season saw the Leafs dropping a heartbreaker to Earlham 80-81. The 100 points against Concordia was the high output for the season.

James Schrock, Linus Miller, and James Gingerich led in the scoring department with 19.1, 16.8, and 15.7 point averages respectively. James Gingerich topped all foul shooters hitting 81% of his shots. Merle Mullet led the rebounders with 186 rebounds in the sixteen games played.

The J-V's posted a 6-6-1 record. Roger Beachy led the scoring with 18.2 points per game.

The tennis team finished the fall season with a perfect 10-0 record. Albert Oei and Robert Brunk, numbers two and three respectively, went undefeated in singles play. Arnold Willems, number one man, lost only one point in singles play and that was to the captain of the Anderson team. Brunk and Oei, and Willems and Beachy, numbers one and two doubles teams respectively, went undefeated. Western Michigan and Earlham were scheduled for the spring matches.

Action was exciting and rugged in the fall soccer contests, but the results were disheartening as the Leafs lost all eight games. The highlight and climax of the season was the Homecoming game against the University of West Virginia. The contest was fast and spirited as the Mountaineers edged the Leafs 4-2 in the finale.

Tennis Team. Front: Albert Oei, James Alderfer, John Beachy, John Hackman, John D. Yoder. Back: Coach Roman Gingerich, Robert Brunk, Arnie Willems, Leslie Swartley, Jon Hartzler, Orrie Clemens.

Many men enthusiastically participated in the men's intramural program. The juniors dominated the major portion of the hard-fought contests. The juniors were unbeatable in football as they chalked up a 5-0 record without a point scored against them. Junior I, Junior III, and Junior IV were the champions of their respective basketball leagues.

The rough and rugged soccer league ended in a three-way tie for first place. The senior, junior, and sophomore teams all finished with identical 3-1 records. Junior I, with a 5-0 record, won the softball championship. Senior II swept the B division with a 3-0 record.

The women's intramural program found the seniors and the freshmen dominating the play. In softball, the seniors were champions with a 5-1 record. In volleyball the seniors again excelled with a 7-1 record. The Freshman B team in the B League won the volleyball championship with a 7-1 record. The freshman basketball teams dominated both leagues. The Freshman A teams won the A League and the B team won the B League with identically unblemished 6-0 records.

Close play between Junior II and Freshman I teams activated softball intramurals.

Overanxious teamwork produced clashes between Sophomore II and Freshman III.

Up and through scored for Evelyn Yoder in play with the Taylor girls.

Timing was all important to Byron Shenk, trampoline artist.

An extra stretch added two points to Sophomore II against Freshman III.

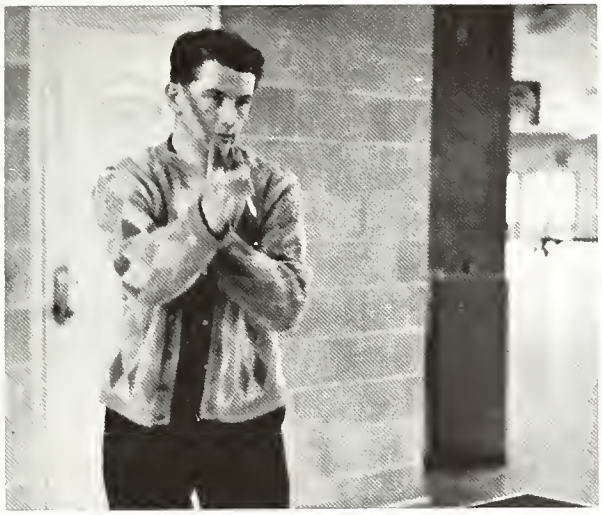
The baseball team faced a heavy schedule with 22 games. The team consisted of ten returnees, but the entire pitching staff was new. St. Joseph's and Anderson colleges were two of the larger colleges played.

The three-year-old golf team, under the direction of Dr. Henry Weaver, had scheduled six matches. Matches included play with Manchester, Anderson, Huntington, and Concordia as well as participation in the Indiana Little State Tournament which was for small colleges all over the state.

Baseball Squad. Front: Steven Snyder, Kermit Yoder, Keith Hamsher, Russell Freed, Robert Lehman, Merritt Lehman, Wendell Beck, David Bolton, Dovid Gerber. Back: Coach Harold Yoder, Phil Miller, Linus Miller, Ray Trembow, James Gingerich, Carl Unzicker, George Wismer, Edword Mast, James Schrock, Daniel Bodiker, Richard Metzler.

Baseball season began with a "Play Ball" call from behind the scene spot.

Golf Team. Benjamin Graber, Steven Miller, Jon Hartzler, Maurice Lehman, Donald Smith, Lester Hartzler, Dr. Henry Weaver, Jr., James Kintigh.



Many interested students participated in the various individual tournaments. Geraldine Chan won the girls' ping-pong tourney while Phyllis Ruth won the girls' shuffleboard tourney. Maurice Lehman won the men's ping-pong tournament and James Gingerich won the free throw tourney and set a new record in the process—sinking 50 out of 50 free throws. The shuffleboard, horseshoe, tennis, and badminton tourneys took place during the spring for both the men and the women.

A spin on the serve helped Maurice Lehman become ping-pong champion.

Dropping 50-50 was serious business for free throw champ James Gingerich.

Through campus culture, students at Goshen College learn appreciation for great works of music, art, and drama. Noted performers appeared on the Lecture-Music Series, imparting a deep sense of meaning to the works. Students interested in international developments benefited by the evaluation of well-informed lecturers.

The Chapel-Lecture Series brought students in contact with Christian men, outstanding in their respective fields.

Slightly less professional, but just as rewarding, were the student activities such as all-school plays, parties, Spring Fest, and Open House program. These events stimulated student creativity, and an esprit de corps.

Special occasions brought to Goshen College exhibits of art and architecture. Religious leaders, political figures, and educators contributed their ideas and concerns to the life of the campus.

The sum of these experiences fostered a guide to good taste and insights into cultural, intellectual, and spiritual life.

In October many students helped in the production of the all-school play, "I REMEMBER MAMA," presented November 9 and 10. The story, an adaptation by John Van Druten from the book, "Mama's Bank Account," develops around a Norwegian immigrant family and their life, with the focal point on Mama (Carolyn Stoltzfus) and her unique ways of helping the family feel secure in spite of their poverty. The story moves on from crisis to crisis in narrative style as it is read and re-enacted from Katrin's (Joan Johns) diary. The flavor of the old-world customs comes through at various times as actors and actresses imitate the Scandinavian accent and portray the problems arising from their situation.

The play was sponsored by the Drama Club. Dr. Umble directed the play, assisted by Peggy Cook, president of the club.

Reading with a dramatic flair from the great classics, Mr. Hyde (David Yoder) received the rapt attention of the whole family.

The news of Uncle Chris' illness worried Mama (Carolyn Stoltzfus) and produced a flurry of activity on her part.

Katrin (Joan Johns) retreated from her family to the attic to write her aspirations, wishes, and experiences in her diary.

A call from her undertaker fiance, Peter Thorkelson, lighted up Trina's (Kathleen Winger) eyes and voice.

Dagmar (Bonita Liechty) and her pet cat, Uncle Elizabeth, were inseparable after Uncle Elizabeth's miraculous recovery from chloroform.

The German play "The Sign of Jonah" by Guenter Rutenborn was presented in March as the spring all-school play with Allen Hershberger and Willie Meyers holding the leading roles. The unusual play was written in the postwar period and philosophizes on the problem of guilt. The action centers on a courtroom investigation to establish the guilt for the atrocities of the recent war. Despite the protest of Jonah, the citizens rationalize and say that God is guilty and sentence Him to suffer as they have suffered.

The Average Woman (Joanne Hallman) wept for the children who suffered war.

To have sentenced God haunted the Judge (Allen Hershberger).

Jonah (William Meyers) relived with pain his fish-submarine experience.

"But rulers must keep order," the Queen (Margaret Cooke) defended her case.

All the women were indeed impressed by the cleanliness (excuse the Beat's rooms!) which the men displayed on the night of November 2. At 9:00 p.m. the four women's dorms put on a unique program, each dorm giving a short program.

Kulp Hall presented Act II of the play "Our Town."

Westlawn girls sang their hearts out as they presented songs from the great musicals, "Oklahoma," "South Pacific," "The Sound of Music," and "The King and I."

Coffman Hall girls did a very interesting imitation of a Mitch Miller program and High Park produced a rather unusual monologue, "Eloise at High Park."

All dorms must have done a great job for as a bonus for their excellent performance all the girls got a late-leave that night!

"Do you take this man(?)" added to Open House humor.

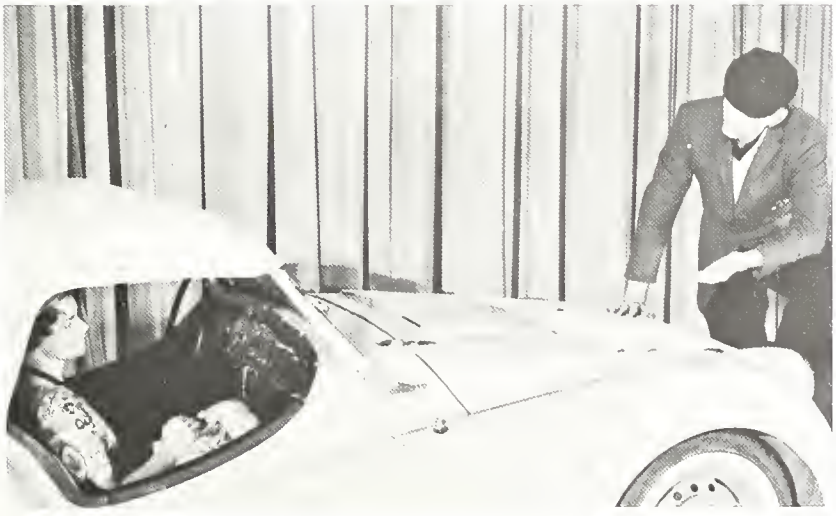
"The King and I" was Americanized by Westlawn girls.

The story of Plain and Fancy is more plain than fancy. It concerns a young New Yorker and his sophisticated girl friend who drove down into the Amish country to sell a piece of property which he has inherited but has never seen. In this neighborhood of Bird in Hand, they find themselves out of their metropolitan world in a land of quaint customs, stern morals and "Pennsylvania Dutch." They get a taste of shoefly pie, watch a barn-raising, and manage to fix up a romance so that love comes fancy to the plain.

Knowing not whether to follow her heart, Kay Swartzendruber turned away from Peter's pleadings.

With cool water Virginia Mast rewarded the hard working "brothers" as they aided an unfortunate neighbor at a barn raising.

"Where in the world is Bird in Hand?" the city slickers disgustedly asked upon losing their directions in Amish country.



A number of SOCIAL EVENTS were held this year to help students get better acquainted with each other and to relieve the tension of studying.

All-school mixers, teas, and small informal parties were among the activities. The faculty opened their homes to small parties after the L-M's. Also, Brunk's Cabin was used for larger weekend get-togethers.

Confusion was the theme of the Halloween Party. Everyone was to come dressed in a never-before-dreamed-of combination. To climax the fun there was an all-school talent program followed by refreshments.

The Midwinter Social in February gave an opportunity for students and faculty to relax in faculty homes and to get to know each other better.

That all school teas usually serve punch was discovered by freshmen Lillian Knox and Janlee Ebersole.

With too gentlemanly voices, this ladies' quartet pantomimed a barbershop quartet at the Freshmen Talent Show in October.

Even upperclassmen found that dressing confusingly for the Halloween Party added color to the festivity.

Only on a freshmen outing were there circles of boys and circles of girls; later in the college career the circles became co-educational.

Folk songs and ballads, including yodeling, were the program presentations of Chris Yoder at the Halloween Party.

Huge pieces of homemade cake, baked by the faculty wives, were the attraction at the all-school picnic in September.

Both campus and community again had the opportunity to hear excellent world-famous musicians, lecturers, and statesmen in this year's LECTURE-MUSIC SERIES.

Gerald Souzay, a baritone from France, and the famed pianist, Rudolph Serkin, were the two solo performers in music. Other outstanding performances in music included the famed Vienna Octet, Netherlands Chamber Orchestra, National Symphony Orchestra, Augustana Choir, and the Singing City Chorale.

The L-M schedule included four lectures. Pulitzer Prize winner Harrison Salisbury presented "A New Look at the Soviet Challenge" and Charles Taft spoke on the "U.S. Tariff Policy with Respect to the European Common Market." Two illustrated lectures were given. Arthur Twomey, Director of Education at Carnegie Institute, presented "The Changing Heart of Africa" and Clifford Kamen, a producer of educational films, gave "Mexico—on the Trail of Cortes."

As a touring college group, the Augustana Choir, conducted by Henry Veld, exhibited mystery of presentation in their March concert.

To have heard is to believe—Rudolf Serkin's piano artistry topped all previous L-M performances.

Pulitzer prize winner Harrison Salisbury, in his lecture, "A New Look at the Soviet Challenge," emphasized his ability to present complex and difficult topics clearly.

Excelling on the recital stage as well as in the opera field, Gerard Souzay displayed a most outstanding versatility in his field.

The unique sound of the Vienna Octet provided a living link with the magic realm of the Vienna of bygone days.

CAMPUS CULTURE included the new Chapel-Lecture convocations which added to the cultural activities by having outstanding speakers discuss various social, religious, and ethical topics. Well-known men such as Dr. William Pollard, executive director of the Oak Ridge Institute for Nuclear Study, Dr. O. Hobart Mowrer, research professor in the Department of Psychology at the University of Illinois, and Dr. H. A. Gleason, professor of linguistics at Hartford Seminary, presented Chapel-Lectures.

During the Homecoming season our own Professor Ezra Hershberger featured an exhibition of his painting and drawing in the Union Lounge.

Recitals and concerts given by music and speech majors also added color to the activities of the year. College audiences were delighted at the excellent quality of the several concert performances put on by music faculty and students.

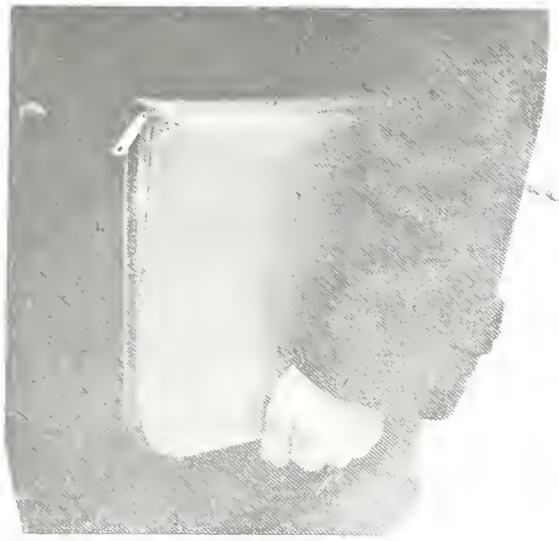
Kenneth Nafziger's cultivated tenor vocalized his December recital of Bach, Schubert, Haydn and other masters.

Wallace Shellenberger found Dr. Henry Hitt Crane as vivid a conversationalist as he was a speaker.

Alden B. Dow's distinct and highly individualistic architectural photo exhibit in February prompted passer-by Jay Speicher to stop for a closer look.

Following the final recital given in fulfillment of the requirements for the degree, Doctor of Music, Dr. Weldy (center) relaxed conversationally with accompanists, Adeline Amstutz and Ronald Moore.

The Thurber, Frost, and Sandburg speech recital by William Davidson brought both humorous and serious insights into the sometimes mundane existence of a campus fellow.

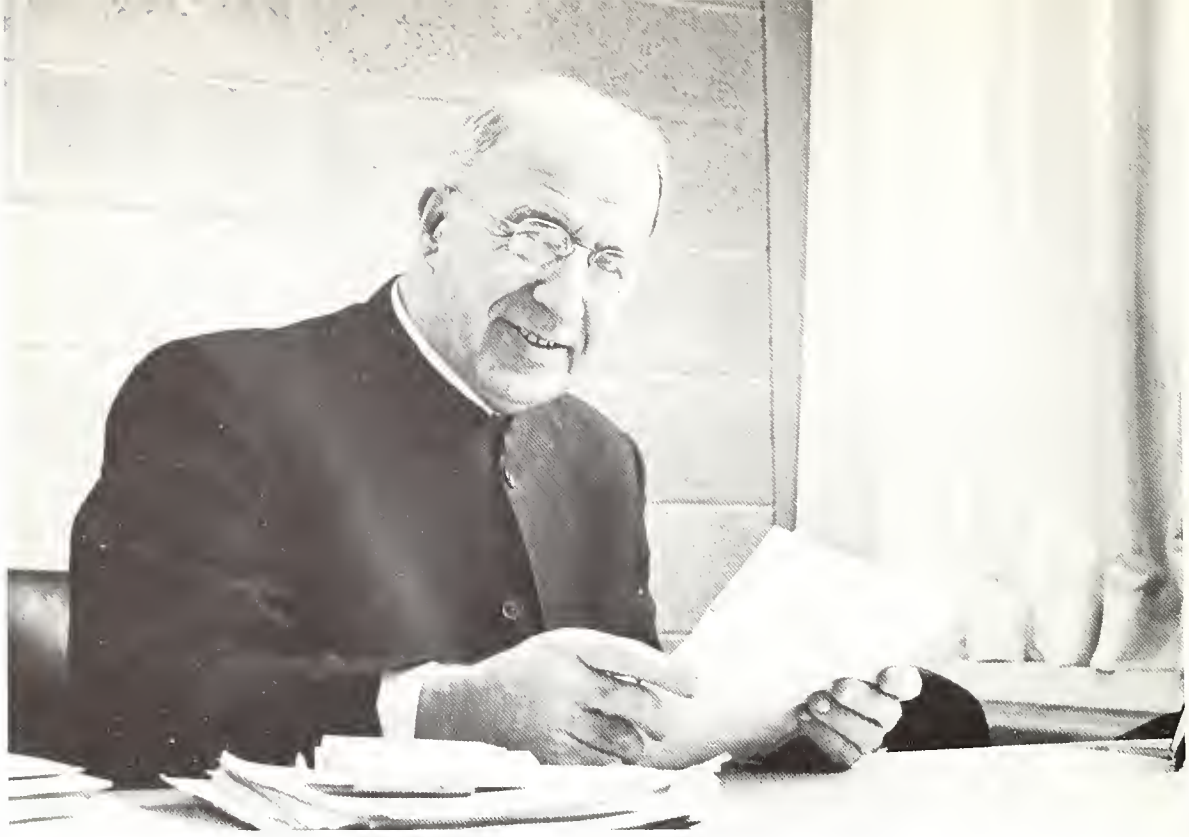


Goshen College Faculty is unique because of its education. Faculty members are the possessors of extensive graduate work — products of Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Basel, Heidelberg, Zurich, Frankfurt, Northwestern, Duke, and Southern Baptist. Recognition of achievements and potential has resulted in their being awarded many fellowships. They have held Fulbright, Science Foundation, Danforth, and Kent Fellowships.

Members of the faculty have had unique experiences. They have taught in Athens, Tokyo, Beirut, at Woodstock, Dhamtari Academy, Columbus, Mishawaka, in Nigeria and Haiti.

In Christian sincerity, they present the viewpoint which projects their teaching to the third dimension. By participating in the spiritual life of the student body and by their willingness to share spiritual concerns, their example becomes a guide.

The Faculty of Goshen College is the sum total of recorded and unrecorded experiences being transferred to those who will listen.



HAROLD STAUFFER BENDER 1897-1962

He rests from his labors, but his works do follow him. What are some of these works? The Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminaries, Mennonite Encyclopedia, Mennonite Quarterly Review, Mennonite World Conference. These are visible monuments to a dedicated Christian. The invisible monuments are no less real. How does one measure the influence of a long-ago term address in chapel on Jesus' words, "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven"?

Harold Stauffer Bender captured the enthusiasm of a generation of Goshen College students with "The Anabaptist Vision." For them it became a twentieth-century vision, its three main points a part of their being: (1) The essence of Christianity is discipleship, following after Christ. (2) The church is a brotherhood; its membership must be voluntary, based on true conversion and involving a commitment to holy living. (3) The ethic of love and nonresistance is to be applied to all human relationships. It is impossible to measure the impact which this "Vision" has had in the widespread voluntary service and Pax programs of the Mennonite Church. Only at the end of time can it be assessed clearly.

Dean Bender, like Peter of old, was not perfect, nor did he claim to be; but he has influenced history for Christ. It remains for us the living to be as dedicated with our more limited resources as he was with his richly endowed gifts.

The relationships of Goshen College to the Mennonite Church, the community, and other colleges were President Mininger's concern in action. Serving as chairman of the Higher Education Council, Council of Mennonite Colleges, Ministerial Committee of the Mennonite General Conference, Committee on Co-ordination of Church Program, and Personnel Committee of the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities, he formulated these church-state-college relationships. Furthering his role this year, he served as Acting Dean of the Goshen Seminary.

Likewise, Dean Kreider served outside the campus community as co-ordinator for the Committee on Liberal Arts Education of the North Central Association of Colleges and as a member of the Board of Trustees, Japan International Christian University Foundation.

Dean Beechy filled positions of service as president of the Indiana College Personnel Association, as chairman of the Relief and Service Committee, and as a member of the Executive Committee of MCC, and Commission I of American College Personnel Association.

The task of communicating was no puff of paradox to the LANGUAGE, LITERATURE, AND FINE ARTS, DIVISION I faculty. Jess Yoder, though engaged in research on "The Idea of Free Wheeling in Static Machines," found time to write articles for both the Mennonite Quarterly Review and The Builder. Likewise, Roy Umble furthered the written communication as editor of the adult section of The Builder. As Intercollegiate Peace Speech Association executive secretary-treasurer and chairman of interest group for Speech for Religious Workers of the Speech Association of America, Dr. Umble will travel to Colorado for the annual convention of the Speech Association of America in the summer of 1963.

The music and art faculty members also made major contributions to communication understanding. Dwight Weldy and Eleanor Nase of the music faculty perfected and presented their recitals. During Homecoming Weekend, Ezra Hershberger displayed a vast and excellent exhibit of his paintings and prints.

Research, editorialships, and church services constituted valuable contributions by the SOCIAL SCIENCE faculty of DIVISION III. Research on "Anabaptism in Central Germany; Opposition by Reformers to Anabaptists," "The Social Pronouncements of the Vatican, 1846-1958," "Family Life Among Mennonites and Old Order Amish" and "German Family Life" was engaged in by John Oyer, Richard Camp, and J. Howard Kauffman respectively.

As editor of the Mennonite Quarterly Review, Guy F. Hershberger consulted with associate editors Dr. Oyer and Dr. Kauffman.

Services to the church by faculty members included leadership in the Mennonite Historical Society, Peace Problems Committee, Committee on Economic and Social Relations, Health and Welfare Commission, and the Mennonite Cultural Conference in June.

Clarity and balance governed by reason plus a high degree of accuracy characterized Eleanor Nose's refreshing artistic recital.

As a mature and seasoned artist, Ezra Hershberger puts a few finishing touches on a canvas in preparation for his Homecoming Weekend exhibit.

Scientific research and off campus leadership roles occupied the long hours of the NATURAL SCIENCE faculty, DIVISION III. Frank Bishop continued his research on "Physiology of the Fungi," while Henry Weaver studied "A New Method for Identification of Amines" and "Solvent Effects on Complex Ion Formation." Arthur Smucker explored the "Isolation and Study of a Growth Factor for Gonatobotrys Simplex." Dr. Smucker plans to attend this summer's Institute on Radio-Isotope Techniques and to begin postdoctorate research with Dr. E. E. Snell in the fall.

Filling several roles of responsibility, H. Clair Amstutz served as chairman of the Board of Mennonite Mental Health Services, as president of the Indiana College Health Association, and as director and medical adviser of Mennonite Aid, Inc. Professor of Biology

The BIBLE AND PHILOSOPHY faculty of DIVISION IV and the SEMINARY faculty continued projects of study and service. Marlin Jeschke studied church discipline, while Ross Bender completed his dissertation, "The Role of the Contemporary Family in Christian Nurture: a Theological Interpretation."

Community and church were served by Paul Miller on various committees of the Indiana-Michigan Conference, and the General Mission Board. Likewise, Millard Lind gave his time as a member of the Economic and Social Relations Committee, and by J. C. Wenger as moderator of the Indiana-Michigan Mennonite Conference.

During a Seminary Fellowship tea, the search for truth continues as age-old problems find either contemporary counterparts or answers in discussion.

Which book when poses a puzzling problem for busy Professor Norman Kraus.

The TEACHER EDUCATION faculty of DIVISION V not only taught but also contributed to the community as a whole. Karl Massanari and Mary Royer served on the N.C.A.T.E. visitation team. Dr. Massanari also fulfilled the offices of Bulletin editor of the Goshen Exchange Club and secretary of the Church-Chapel Board of Directors. Dr. Royer engaged in field work throughout the U.S. and Canada by giving lectures, writing for church publications, and serving as consultant in Christian education for the Mennonite Publishing House.

The SCHOOL OF NURSING, DIVISION VI, faculty also served. Eva Byers was president of the State Nurses' Association, District #12. Bernice Rupp was chairman of the Planning Committee for the 1963 District Nurses' Institute. Orpah Mosemann was first vice-president of the E.A.C.T. Section of the Indiana State Nurses' Association. On her sabbatical leave of 1963-64, she plans to travel to Eastern Asia, Africa, and Europe to visit various schools of nursing, and to assist in the School of Nursing at Dhamtari, India.

Part-time instructors, drawn from the community, supplemented the regular faculty roster. In addition to those pictured here, others added their talents

In the division of teacher education, Audrey Russel taught guidance, while Edgar Speer and Gerald Moyer served as part-time supervisors of the elementary student teachers. Business instructors included Frank Gilbert in marketing management; John Hostetter, accounting; George Myers, production management; and H. W. Petersen, personnel management. In the Fine Arts department, Abner Hershberger assisted in art, and Myron Casner instructed organ students.

Along with their studies, two teaching fellows, Vicky Bryan and Byron Shenk, completed the teaching personnel in physical education.

Arnold Wyse, B.A.
Acting Dean of Men

Lee Yoder, B.S. in Ed.
Assistant Dean of Men

The future of Goshen College was quietly guided by the behind-the-scenes activities of the administrators in development, public relations, business, and student services. The most evident activity was the physical plant change which took place—the placement of the electrical wiring underground. More exciting was the announcement of the approved plan for the new men's dorm, landscaping of the entire campus including lighting, and the remolding of Science Hall to begin this summer. Meanwhile, students and administration worked toward making the hope of a new library a possibility.

Though less spectacular, the mental and spiritual services offered by the administration made Goshen College an institution functioning smoothly for both faculty and student.

The efficiency and effectiveness of the large Goshen College staff reward the campus community through personal service. Office staff members serve as secretaries, bookkeepers, cashiers, and clerks. Others manage the snack shop and bookstore, operate the switchboard, and supervise the mail service. Printing services and record keepers contribute to the making and recording of tests, grades, statistics, closed files, and related data. The buildings and ground personnel and the housekeepers insure that well-kept look to the campus proper. From personnel office to A-V department, from library to public relations office, from registrar's office to the night watchmen, the Goshen College staff communicates cooperation between the faculty, administration, and student.

Included in the daily maintenance tasks of Wesley Zook is machinery repair.

For student, faculty, or administrator, Era Stutzman guides the printing processes.

Despite numerous appointments, notices, letters, and errands, Barbara Wyse finds time to give individual attention to student problems.

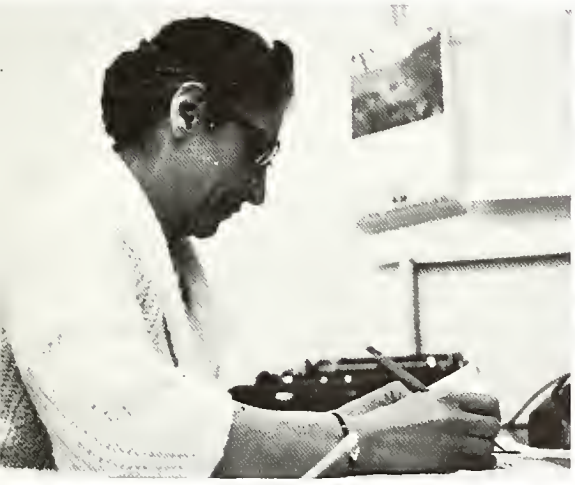
Safe and accurate records of students' accounts, bills, and savings are kept by bookkeeper Loretta Birkey.

Elaborate records of alumni and students are kept by Elva Snider for current college communications.

The housekeeping skills of Beulah McCloud seem never ending when cleaning for the 200 boys in Yoder Hall.

A pinch of this and a dash of that make the salads of Irene Swartz a welcomed treat.

"Cash or charge?" inquires Shirley Yoder, bookstore clerk.



Studentship at Goshen College is sharing. Living together involves sharing clothes with one's roommate, playing pranks on a proctor, and comparing lecture notes before an exam. More important, being a student is learning to give without expecting returns.

As the students study together, they share themselves through their observations, thoughts, and encounters. Learning to know their professors, they share their experiences and ideas which broaden their point of view.

As they worship together, they share their faith and mutual recognition of their inadequacies. Whether in chapel or a cell group, vital concerns demand that they share themselves and their God.

As they relax together, they share walks to Witmer's Woods, outings to Brunk's, pizza parties, and bull sessions.

Sharing is being. As they share with their friends and classmates, the students are molded into the personalities with which they interact, making a corporate student body.

Goshen College Biblical Seminary graduates prepared for their roles as pastors, missionaries, or Christian educators. For their preparation, they found that study with practical work assignments provided experiences which were meaningful.

Each senior has progressed from generalized to specialized training according to his interests and abilities. With this academic training and unique background of experiences, he is prepared to face society in his particular field of service.

The senior trip to Chicago proved to be a worth-while experience with the premiere night of the opera, "Prince Igor," the musical, "The Sound of Music," and activities of each individual's choice. Other common memories are the refreshing and relaxing weekend at Brunk's Cabin their junior year; and the presentation of the sophomore variety program.

Senior Class Officers: William Ruth, Treasurer; Martha Bender, Historian; Kermit Yoder, President; Evelyn Kauffman, Secretary; Charles Hostetter, Vice-President.

Juniors? Personalities whose upper-class status has gone to their heads. Juniors are not conceited; everyone knows they are good, and no one knows it better than they. They view themselves as strictly individuals and cultivate this individuality. They refuse to be identified with any specific stereotyped college student. Therefore, juniors wear the most unusual clothes, think in the most original ways, and introduce transient traditions to our campus. Juniors are most often found in out-of-the way places like Westlawn Lounge, the Health Center, Miller's Restaurant, or in front of the TV set. Juniors? Personalities whose upper-class status has gone to their heads.

Activities distinctly junior filled their year of business and busywork with long hours. Juniors ground away at the tight schedule of major fields and elective courses.

But the long hours were due in part to numerous extracurricular activities. As Y.P.C.A. commissioners, S.F.C. or S.A.B. members, discussion of problems became a problem to discuss. Yet, in scant minutes between classes or on fleeting weekends, the juniors squeezed socializing into their agendas to relieve the monotony of forever going, yet not quite arriving.

With his usual enthusiasm, Peter Waiyaki gives his opinion at the fall International Student retreat.

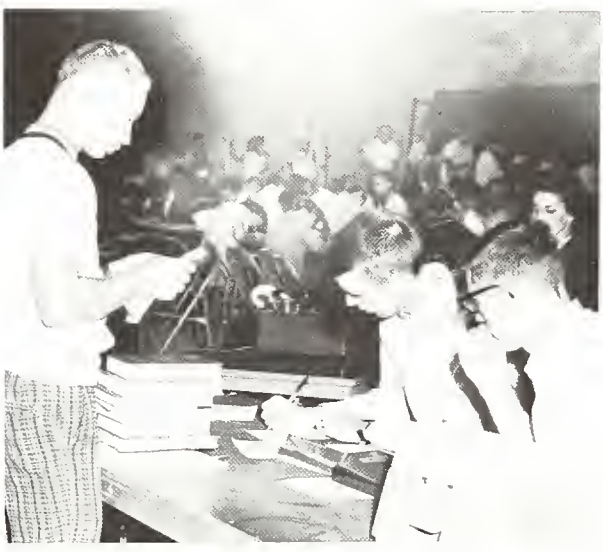
Despite being the smallest class on campus, the 191 juniors were a busy busy class. The 101 men and 90 women under the sponsorship of Arthur Smucker found year-long leadership duties mapped out for them by right of their junior-ship.

Planning for the May Junior-Senior Banquet began in October. Meanwhile, the hard-working juniors rushed to meet the first Maple Leaf deadline in December. Spring brought additional concentrated activity. Plans for the next year's senior trip were discussed during practice for Senior Class Day activities.

And the year ended with a sigh.

Junior Class Officers. Dan Bodiker, Treasurer; Joanne Hallman, Vice-President; Elaine Bachman, Secretary; Dan Schrock, President; Valetta Aeschliman, Historian.



Being the first one through the registration line first semester affords junior Walter Troyer joy at being done.

Sophomores? Personalities with innumerable questions. They spend hours discussing Life and Truth, and more hours devising intricate practical jokes. They experiment with cynicism and skepticism, challenging everything. By the second semester, sophomores begin to realize vaguely the academic implications of college life and commence to search frantically for a major. Somewhat less frantically, they begin to take social life earnestly. By the year's end, they have developed a weary, worldly-wise attitude ("You can't fool a sophomore; he knows what's going on") which disappears next fall. Sophomores? Personalities with innumerable questions.

Decision packed the sophomore year. From completing their general requirements to selecting their major field, the sophomores made serious choices. Appointments with their faculty counselor had to be met. Course study sheets had to be deciphered. Quality points had to be figured up. The totals spoke, "Get busy!"

With a do-or-die motivation, serious sophomores pondered the spring battery of sophomore tests. They even proofread their general literature essays. "We'll do it yet," they affirmed with their studious fervor.

Decisions about extracurricular activities were also settled by the sophomores. For some, the acceptance of the duties of a Y Commissioner was a major choice. For others, positions as editors or staff members of the Record or the Maple Leaf were confirmed. Leading a club as an officer was a position to be accepted and a duty to be fulfilled.

Such leadership appointments were looked upon with fear. True, leadership was a challenge and considered part of the learning process. But, did they dare?

The influence of the sophomores upon the campus could have been attributed to their being 254 strong—the largest class. However, their activities as a class organization under the sponsorship of Frank Bishop were impressive not merely because of their number but also because of dedication and hard work.

In lighter moments, the 136 men and 118 women participated in pie-throwing class socials. A bit more serious effort was used in producing the now traditional Sophomore Variety Show.

And the year ended with a hurrah!

Sophomore Class Officers. Virginia Mast, Secretary; Ken Brubaker, Treasurer; Joan Krabill, Historian; Lavon Welty, President; Earl Snyder, Vice-President.

That once in a semester house cleaning is grudgingly done by sophomores Art Smoker and Phil Rittenhouse.

Freshmen? People with split personalities. Profs may consider them quiet and studious, but the upperclassmen consider them noisy and irritating. Freshmen read the handbook after having fractured the rules. They are by nature pedestrians because there is one rule which they do know. Freshmen make themselves conspicuous by their lack of inhibitions. They are the ones who giggle in the library; they are the ones who slap "Kick Me" signs on people's backs. In spite of their puerile nature, they are tolerated by upperclassmen because of the ridiculous memories they invoke. Freshmen? People with split personalities.

The novelty of being a freshman began to wear off as the first registration line, the first exams and term papers, and the first grade-reporting day became history. Greenness was further hidden as the freshmen survived Freshman Days, Freshmen Orientation Class, and Freshman Parents Weekend.

But the freshmen never lost their distinctness. Curiosity, experimentation, and complaining were concealed until they learned their opinions were accepted if they spoke quietly with respect.

Uninhibited freshmen Jon Hiester, John Swartz, and Robert Mast invite supper diners to the annual Halloween party.

Getting a start proves a problem for most freshmen, and this year's class was no exception. When class elections were held in the fall, they complained, "But we don't know anyone yet." Nevertheless, under the guidance of Amy Hunsberger and Lee Yoder, 219 freshmen were on their way.

Presenting the Freshman Talent Show and decorating and providing the program for their Freshman Banquet were carried out by the class with usual freshman gusto. Other big events included two class outings.

And the year ended with a "now what"?

As Goshen College students rake leaves, wash windows, baby-sit, house clean, catch turkeys, work as receptionists and clerks, and student teach, they contribute to the life and growth of the Community.

The college Community—alumni, home town folks, parents, friends, churches, businessmen from Goshen, Elkhart County, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Iowa—diverse and scattered, is bound together by its shared interests in higher education.

As the College contributes to the Community, so the Community contributes to the College by enriching the College's philosophy of education through its ideas and attitudes. With the Community's encouragement, students are stimulated to prepare for a life of purpose. The continued growth of Goshen College is made possible through the patrons' financial and spiritual support.

Students and Community, each giving of themselves, together build mutual understanding.

THE DEMANDS OF THE FUTURE MAKE TODAY'S PROGRESS A REALITY

Goshen College campus growth moved forward again during the school year of 1962 and 1963. During the fall, the President's office announced plans for a new men's dormitory complex including rooms for 136 men. Construction on the dormitory, to be located northwest of Yoder Hall, began this spring and is to be completed by Septemper, 1964.

As an institution of higher education with long-range goals, Goshen College will continue to expand in order to accommodate the student body of the future.

A TOAST TO THE CLASS OF 1963

The future is yours; may it serve you well!

Man of the Future, what shall be
The life of Earth that you shall see?
What strange new facts the years will show?
What wonders rare your eyes shall know?
To what new realms of marvel, say,
Will conquering science war its way?

This brief case for the seizure and holding of the Goshen College image is now closed. Yet, gratitude and praise belong to many for their share in the experimental exposure of Goshen's phantom form. My special thanks to these:

Melvin Birky—faculty adviser.

Paul Kaufman and Duncan Schiedt—professional photography.

Harold Helmuth, Marvin Eash, Sanford Swartzentruber, William Miller, Knud Petersen—student photography.

Stanley E. Yoder—Mennonite Publishing House—printing.

Allen Hershberger—copy writer.

Roseyn Rychener—copy reading.

Margaret Beechy—index.

Cara Lou Schrock, Maretta Britsch, and Rebecca Harvey—picture identification.

Jack K. Bundy—S. K. Smith Company—covers.

Thomas Kauffman—cover design.

Students and faculty members—suggestions, advice, and cooperation.

The year is too much with us. The kaleidoscope turns again. Already a new case begins.
